"Parasitic Rich" Scored By "Social Pathologist"

Prof. Henry W. Farnham, of Yale, Denounces the "Monkey Dinner" Class Before American Economic Association.

Declaring that the "Parasitic Rich" in America must be controlled before the advance of socialism and anarchy can be checked, Prof. Henry W. Farnham, of Yale, president of the American Economic Association, yesterday announced himself in favor of a scientific investigation into that remarkable class that has instituted monkey dinners in Newport and all-night snake dances in New York.

In an address before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, now in session here, Prof. Farnham said: "It is a matter of common observation that wealthy families in our country often contain a number of parasitic members, that is, members who derive a large income from society without rendering any appreciable economic or public service in return. These general and obvious facts need, however, to be examined historically and statistically, in order to enable us to judge correctly of the reaction of prosperity on the human mind, and of the conditions which determine it.

"We gather the instincts of workingmen, but not of children, we collect the statistics of involuntary unemployment, but not of voluntary idleness, we study of social conditions on the East Side has not been extended to the West Side.

"And yet how can we understand the cause of national decadence, that great and perennial question of history as well as of practical politics unless we unflinchingly examine its phenomena during the growing period?

"These parasitic members of the so-called 'beast' class must be peculiarly useful specimens for economic study in our country, because they are not under the social pressure of the feudal system, inherited in the older countries of Europe from the time when wealth meant land ownership, and land ownership of necessity involved public duties.

"Many of this class walk our streets, eloquent but unconscious arguments for socialism, terrible examples for the moralist, living texts for sermons, rich material for the problem novel, but still comparatively neglected by the economist, the sociologist, and the statistician.

"Intensive studies of heredity in families, such as those made by Sir Francis Galton in England and Dr. Frederick A. Woods and Dr. C. B. Davenport in our country, are greatly needed, but need to be supplemented by a study of the economic reactions.

"In the case of animal life, the inherited characteristics are all-encompassing, and the skillful breeder can reasonably expect to find the qualities of the parent in those of the offspring. But if cows had the power to deliberately choose their life in a pasture, we should find many a pedigree Guernsey, with ancestors in the advanced register, chewing her cud in idleness on the hillside and yielding no milk whatsoever, just as we often find

Inflation of the Stomach from Undigested Food Quickly Relieved by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

When you take food into a stomach that is tired and over-taxed the gastric juices do not form fast enough to digest it properly. So the food becomes sour and at once begins to throw off gases. Your stomach becomes inflated just as surely as if you attached a toy balloon to a gas tube. Then the gas and food odors issue forth and pollute your breath, making you an object of nausea to your friends. Your tongue quickly becomes coated and you can taste the foulness that is within you.

Now all this condition is changed almost instantly by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. This little digester gets busy at once—supplies all the digestive juices that were lacking—digests the food in a jiffy and opens up the clogged stomach and bowels. Also sweetens and refreshes the mucous lining of the stomach and restores peace and content. If you will give Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a chance they will not only sweeten your stomach but also your disposition, and you will never have another stomach ailment.

One grain of a single ingredient in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 2,000 grains of food. This saves your stomach and gives it the rest it needs. All muscles require occasional rest if they are ever over-taxed. The stomach is no exception to this rule. Try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and you will wonder how you ever got along without them. They are sold at 50 cents by all druggists everywhere. A trial package will be sent free on request to S. C. Stuart, Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MOTHER DEFENDS BOY WHO USED BROTHER'S NAME

Youthful "Bandit" Mentally
Weak, She Says.

LAD HELD BY THE POLICE

Though he admittedly sought to hurt his brother by using his name, and though he faces a term in the penitentiary, Miles Bertram Seaton, the youth now held in the Alexandria jail for, during upon civilians and police in that city last Tuesday night, will be defended by his mother, who is willing to spend her all to save him from prison.

Inmate, Says Mother.

Mrs. Annie Seaton, the mother, living at 516 L street northwest, declared last night that her defense of her son was based on her knowledge that he was not mentally responsible for his actions.

A blow on the head from a policeman's club during a fight four years ago was responsible for the boy's erratic actions, his mother said. In giving his brother's name to the police after he had been arrested, "Bert," as his mother affectionately calls him, she showed, she says, another evidence of the mental instability that has characterized him for years.

He is excitable and nervous," said Mrs. Seaton. "He was gradually becoming his tendency toward insanity. What alarmed him last Tuesday and caused him to make an attack upon the police of Alexandria, I cannot say. But I do know that he was not mentally normal when he committed the attack."

Two Stories Vary.

Strangely enough, the mother's story of her son's "Wild West" escapade in Alexandria, which ended when he emptied a .32-caliber revolver at the head of Chief of Police Goods, is at variance with the boy's own account of the affair last night. The boy stated that he "must have been blind drunk."

His mother said he did not drink, and probably "was 'drifted' at something."

In his cell the lad sulkily denied at first that he had used his brother's name. His brother, William P. Seaton, was not with him at the time, he said. And he denied the affair. It was a mistake, he said.

When the police pressed him he admitted he might have said it.

"Blind" Drunk His Excuse.

"But I was blind drunk if I did," he added. Questioned as to the blow over the head he had received several years ago, he said:

"I had a fight with a policeman and he hit me with his club. It bothered me for a while. But that wasn't the trouble last night. I was just plain drunk."

The lad added that he could not stand by him and "get him out of jail."

"They won't do anything to me," he said, "when he comes down and talks to them. She knows I wouldn't do a thing like this ordinarily."

REYES CHARGES DROPPED.

Attorney General Wickersham Advises Officials at Houston.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 28.—The United States attorney general today advised officials at Houston, Tex., that the charges against Gen. Bernardo Reyes, the Mexican officer now under arrest in Mexico charged with fomenting a revolution against President Francisco I. Madero, were dropped by the United States government officials here today.

This action was taken by Gen. Wickersham, United States district attorney, acting under the advice of Attorney General Wickersham. Senora Reyes leaves San Antonio for Mexico City to join her husband to-morrow.

The rumored extradition proceedings against Emilio Vasquez Gomez on the part of the Mexican government were met today by a statement from Gen. Wickersham, United States district attorney, stating that he had no connection with the Reyes revolutionary agitation and hopes for Madero's success.

SMITH FORFEITS COLLATERAL.

"Salt Club" Conductor Fails to Appear in Court.

For violating the District lottery law by conducting a "salt club," a plan of jumping suits of clothes by chance, Shelby Smith, an employee of the Government Printing Office, forfeited $30 collateral in the Police Court yesterday. Smith was arrested recently by Detectives Warren and Mullen upon information given by the Merchant Tailors' Exchange with respect to the club.

The club was composed of fifty persons, who promised to pay $1 a week for twenty-four weeks. Each week one suit was disposed of, the first lucky man getting a $25 suit for $1. At the end of the twenty-fourth week the remaining twenty-six members were required to pay $25 each receiving a suit.

Hausmann Funeral To-morrow.

The funeral of Capt. Theodore Hausmann, organizer of the regiment in which Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley received their military training, will be held to-morrow afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock at the funeral home of the Hines undertaking establishment, under the auspices of Hope Lodge, No. 20, F. A. M. The burial will be with military honors, in Arlington. Capt. Hausmann died at his home, 330 Newton place northwest, last Tuesday.

Wounded in Moro Conflict.

The War Department has been advised that Capt. John W. Barker, of the Third Infantry, was severely wounded during the operations of the army against the Moros in the Philippine Islands. The officer is now in the army hospital, and is expected to recover. During the expedition against the militant Moros 200 of them were captured and are now under guard.

Sues for Damages.

Walter P. Flagg yesterday filed suit against the District of Columbia to recover $500 damages, alleging that on October 6, 1911, while at work in the District of Columbia pumping station, at Fourth and Bryant streets northwest, the boiler tube exploded, injuring him seriously and permanently.

BRITISH LORDSHIP AS BEEF BARON

Witness in Packers' Case
Tells of Big Plans.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 28.—The ten Chicago packers on trial for criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade to-day produced in court contracts bearing their own signatures which show that they hold the contracts of the owners of the thirteen independent packing plants merged into the National Packing Company, by which the latter had themselves to keep out of the packing business for fifteen years. And the contracts are still binding, and will be until March 18, 1915. The remarkable documents surrendered by Attorney Vedder indicate that the billion dollar trust exists in fact today, and in all the details planned, with the exception that the packers have been unable to capitalize the $500,000,000 of water which they bound themselves to turn into land.

All of the independent companies which it was planned to buy have been bought, and in the form of the National Packing Company are now controlled by the Armour, Swift, and Morris interests. All the independents bought out are under contract to keep out of the business. The only difference is that there is not an ounce of water in the capital stock of the National Packing Company. One of the contracts produced to-day is between Louis Samuels and other principals owners of the United Dressed Beef Company, likewise Swift acquired the Anglo-American Provision Company, and Morris the St. Louis Dressed Beef Company. In all thirteen great independent companies were acquired and their competition obliterated.

Similar contracts were executed by G. B. Swift and the so-called Fowler property dominated by the Armour and J. Ogden Armour for the Hammond Packing Company, G. H. Hammond & Co., and all the Hammond properties, likewise Swift acquired the Anglo-American Provision Company, and Morris the St. Louis Dressed Beef Company.

In all thirteen great independent companies were acquired and their competition obliterated.

Swift told his lordship he would think it and the British was so encouraged that he and his friends bought the United Stock Yards company and the Chicago Junction Railway to take care of the merger they were about to create.

Antonio and Mr. Vedder were so patriotic enough to believe in giving native talent and American money precedence.

So they organized the ill-fated trust by conducting a "salt club," a plan of jumping suits of clothes by chance, Shelby Smith, an employee of the Government Printing Office, forfeited $30 collateral in the Police Court yesterday.

Smith was arrested recently by Detectives Warren and Mullen upon information given by the Merchant Tailors' Exchange with respect to the club.

FATE OF MORSE HANGS ON REPORT

chosen to take the two Morse boys to the President. Then came a conference between the Congressman and the two young men in which he strongly urged them not to take advantage of their opportunity to see the President. After he had pointed out the futility of an appeal so biased as their own, the two young men reluctantly gave up hope of accomplishing the object of their visit, and returned to Baltimore.

Two Boys Brokenhearted.

"Both of these boys," said Representative Howard last night, "are brokenhearted at the terrible end that threatens their father. It is their desire, as it is of the members of the family, that the term of imprisonment be stopped before it becomes a death penalty—a penalty so severe as to be almost unendurable."

"Statements that I have personally appealed to the President to prolong the life of Charles W. Morse by allowing him to leave the hospital prison, are untrue. I have never addressed him on the subject. Yet I will say that, in the best of my judgment, Morse should be pardoned. Undoubtedly, the man is dying. I have seen him and I know that he cannot live. Were it possible to take an active step in the affair without appearing unduly to interfere I would willingly say to any one that Morse can never regain his health and should be released."

The purpose of Mr. Howard's visit to the White House yesterday was not, as was said yesterday, to plead with the President to pardon Morse, but to break the engagement which Senator Raynor has made for two sons. This he did, and left soon afterward.

Board Chosen Sunday.

From the White House last night came the story of how the army board, which was sent to make the final report, was chosen and ordered to Atlanta. Last Sunday, after a long conference, at which Surg. Gen. Torney of the army; Surg. Gen. Stokes, of the navy, and others were present, President Taft commented on the wide variance between the unofficial and official reports. In the former it appeared that Morse had at best but a few weeks to live. In the latter there was the ironic suggestion that the banker was being well cared for, and would live to serve out his prison term, despite "this apparent condition."

A reconciliation of these two reports being impossible, the President requested Gen. Torney to select a board, which could make a complete investigation of the case and act as the final tribunal in the matter.

Gen. Torney made it clear that unless the banker's condition was far more serious than any one suspected, no unusual haste was to be shown in preparing the report. In other words, the board was to take all time, to satisfy itself as to Morse's condition.

Last night it was stated that the outcome of the present agitation in favor of the banker's release would be a general Congressional investigation of the Federal prison at Fort McPherson, where Morse is confined. Stories of ill treatment and a desire to "keep in right" by using the unfortunate man with unnecessary harshness have been coming to Washington more or less frequently of late. Tuberculosis and other diseases are ascribed to the condition of the penitentiary.

All of this, it is said, will be brought to the attention of Congress when it meets in January, and a general overhauling of the prison will result.

Morse's Case Difficult.

Gen. Torney last night gave an interesting sidelight to the affair when he remarked that the nature of Morse's disease made it extremely difficult to estimate the length of his life.

It is well known that in cases of Bright's disease, where creeping paralysis has set in, the patient may live for months or days. The progress of the disease is slow but sure. Yet even if Morse has this ailment in the advanced Identified as John G. King.

Through the signature on a Masonic card found in his effects, the man found dead in a room at the Hartford Hotel, New York City, was identified as John G. King, traveling salesman for a New York City concern. It is thought that the man accidentally left the gas turned on in his room. The New York authorities have been asked to locate his relatives. It is thought King's home is in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Stagnant Case Held Up.

After a conference with the officials of the district attorney's office yesterday, police authorities decided to wait twenty-four hours before proceeding against John Walker, who on Thursday night gave himself up, saying that to the best of his belief he had committed bigamy. Walker, still undecided, is held at the First precinct pending the outcome of the case.
